Chalermsuk Yugala
CBRN Specialist, Chemical Department
Royal Thai Army

Lieutenant General Yugula received his commission in the Royal Thai Army in 1976 and was assigned to the Chemical Department, a unit responsible for NBC defence, where he remains until now.
He teaches and trains soldiers of the tri services as well as civilian in CBRN defence. While not teaching he was a member of the Thai Delegation attending various multilateral treaties meetings on WMD disarmament in Geneva and The Hague. He was Chemical Weapons Inspector in Iraq for UNSCOM and UNMOVIC in 1991 and 2002-2003.
When the Cold War era ended he thought he would have an easier time, not having to be deployed along the border from time to time, but he was wrong. Now he is as busy as ever if not more, because he has to attend to the business of counter CBRN terrorism and disaster relief with the emphasis on CBRN.
His present and final appointment is Senior Army Expert (CBRN) because he is due to retire at the end of this fiscal year.
