

Patrick Meroney, Manager, Information Management, Repsol Houston

Pat has worked in and around Information Management in Exploration and Production for over 24 years and has written and presented on various topics over the years including GIS, Information Delivery, Data Governance and IM Organizations. Pat worked at Conoco and then ConocoPhillips for 21 years before moving to Repsol E&P to lead their US Information Management organization in 2011. In the last 24+ years he has held various positions in the E&P business and then within IT and IM including: Engineering Tech, Geophysical Data Loading lead, Data Analyst, Business Analyst, US Data Manager, US Business Unit IT Business Partner, Global Strategy IT Drilling and Operations. He has worked in Midland Texas, Stavanger Norway, Houston and The Woodlands Texas, where is currently located and working as Manager of Information Management Houston Region for Repsol. Like many people working today in Information Management, Pat was drawn to IM through an understanding that the proper use of Process, Technology and Data could make lives better, help accomplish tasks faster and provide a more accurate result.
